'No Mother To Guide Her' To Be Presented By Virginia City Players

On Friday evening, the fourth of November, Raymond theatre-fans will see something new or rather something old when the well-known Virginia City Players present Lillian Mortimer's rip-roaring melodrama "No Mother To Guide Her" at the Opera House.

The play, one of the classics of the 19th century American stage, will be presented exactly as it was when old-time touring companies took it on the road. Costumes, stage settings, lights, electric now, are authentic to the last detail.

Even the dramatic acting technique confirm to the strictest rules of pure melodrama. Harry Smith, cast in one of the starring roles, has won universal acclaim for the superlative Delsartian mime-techniques he employs in "No Mother To Guide Her". As the fiendish arch-villain, John Livingstone, Smith projects lust, deceit, and murderous fury so effectively that before the end of the first act catcalls and hisses from the audience greet him each time he makes an entrance. This summer, at the old Stone Barn Playhouse the troupe's own theatre in historic Virginia City, Montana, Smith took repeated curtain calls before enthusiastic audiences who applauded his performance, at the same time booing the characterization he had just portrayed. And, lest it be thought that 19th century melodrama is passe, it is worth noting that "No Mother To Guide Her" has had the longest run of any production in the Players' repertoire playing for over six weeks to capacity crowds that broke all box-office records at Virginia City's summer theatre.

Smith, who is from Portland, Oregon, majored in drama at the University of Oregon, where he played leading roles for two years. He has just finished a stint of winter repertory at Portland Civic Theatre, portraying such roles as David, in Sabrina Fair, and Price, in Stalag 17. He will also be remembered for his outstanding performances as Lionel, in Old Phil's Birthday, and Scumley, in Marion's Crime during the Players 1950 tour. Smith rejoined the Players in 1954 after serving two and a half years in the Army as a lieutenant in the Signal Corps. His villainous role in "No Mother To Guide Her" is reminiscent of a part he played in the troupe's tour last year when he was cast as the brutal Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Mrs. Willis, mother of Mrs. Kay Anderson has returned to Swift Current after spending a week or so with her, during the illness of her grandson.

Twelve little misses helped make a birthday celebration joyous for Nola Kay McMullen recently.

The games were enjoyed by all as was the lunch, served at tables centered by a colorfully decorated cake with cherry holders for the seven candles, which were blown out by all the children after singing the birthday song to Nola Kay. While the little guests sat around in Indian Style Nola Kay then opened her gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Ren Mitchell and 3 of their children accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greep from their home in Castlegar, B. C. to spend a few days in Raymond at the home of Mrs. Alice Court. Mrs. Earl Zundell of Mar Vista, California has been visiting at the home of her daughter Mrs. Ferris Zaugg.

All present enjoyed an interesting program and a delicious lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Mertz drove to Mountain View to attend the funeral service for their old friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Earl.

Scouters Tell Of Jamboree

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woolley and Gregory Dahl recently gave an interesting report of their impressions of the World Boy Scout Jamboree which they attended this summer, called New Horizons. Roy gave us an idea of how the camp was made up in order to handle 12,000 people from 68 different countries. There were ten sub-camps with each one having its gateway suitably decorated in keeping with its name — the Rocky Mountain Camp being the home of most of the Scouts from this part of the country. In order that these young men might have the great opportunity of becoming acquainted with the thoughts and customs of Scouts from all lands, a few lads from various countries were placed in each camp. Three main languages were spoken. Spanish, French and English with some able to converse in as many as five or six. With 12,000 scouts it is understandable that the officials did not give any autographs although it was a busy pastime for the Scouts when they weren't cooking meals (from a prepared menu) visiting the Exhibition or the many other activities outlined. One of the highlights was the Show put on each evening in the Auditorium by one of the visiting Nationalities which proved extremely interesting. Three hours of Greg's time was spent as part of the Honor Guard for Viscount Vincent Massey.

The parade itself was a very colorful event with the many different national Boy Scout costumes and flags. There were 4,100 from Canada, 1,500 from the United States, 1,000 from France part of which was made up of Blind Scouts, 900 from the United Kingdom with small groups from the various other countries. The Wheel Chair and Blind group from France really depicted brotherhood in action as the more fortunate boys helped care for their "brothers".

Martha and Roy went to Niagara as members of the 1,000 Headquarters Staff who were in a separate division with two people to a tent. To take care of the needs of this temporary city, there was a Bank of Montreal, Post Office, Telephone system connecting with each sub camp as well as outside lines, 160 bed hospital, although there was very little sickness, and a Trading Post at which scout equipment and souvenirs were sold, by Roy among many.

Martha's Department was the Lost and Found under the Policing Division and she said she had a very interesting and busy time tracing owners of boat, train and plane tickets, wallets, equipment — just about anything boys might be carrying. Through the very efficient communication system installed any boy could be located within two minutes however this was necessary for only one Alberta scout who lost his wallet. Part of the reason for Alberta's good record is the fact that all the tickets for transportation and meals were handled by a District Scout Commissioner from Calgary whose magnetic personality made the trip to and from almost as memorable as the Jamboree.

Mrs. Margaret Larson of Provo, Utah, was guest of honor at the home of her sister Olive Steed, when 15 friends gathered to enjoy an evening of chatting and reminiscing. A tasty lunch was served.

The regular meeting of the Lions Club was held at the Legion Hall with Dad Hudson presiding. Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Della Woolf who gave a very interesting discourse on the formation and history of our Public Library. Plans were made to canvas the town in aid of the blind, and Mr. Walter Mitson was engaged to examine the eyes of the school children.

Spurns Czechoslovakia's Offer of an "Amnesty" to Refugees

Far from being impressed by offer from Red government in Prague to grant an "amnesty" to all Czech refugees, George Corn, a Canadian immigrant, said acceptance would be equal "to suicide." Now an auditor in Toronto, Corn, seen above with his son, had to escape from Czechoslovakia five years ago because the police were looking for him as a follower of Dr. Horek, leader of an anti-Communist group in parliament who was later tried for "treason." He pointed out all refugees were declared "enemies of the people" by the Prague regime. "Once declared an enemy of the Communists, always an enemy," he added.

"... But Horace has Canada Savings Bonds."

Mrs. Alan Heggie and Marilee have moved to Calgary for a few months until her husband's work is finished there.

N.E. Tanner, president of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited, and E.D. Loughney, vice-president of Canadian Gulf Oil Company, announced today the signing of a long-term sales and purchase contract for one trillion, three hundred billion cu. ft. of natural gas from the Canadian Gulf Pincher Creek field of Southern Alberta.

The contract calls for the purchase by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited of a minimum of one hundred million cu. ft. of gas daily during the first year, and a minimum of one hundred and seventy million cu. ft. daily each year for the balance of the 25-year contract.

The Pincher Creek field has presently-known gas reserves estimated at three trillion, one hundred billion cu. ft.

Earlier this year Mr. Tanner announced the signing of gas purchase contracts with several other Alberta producing companies, involving in excess of one hundred and thirty-five cu. ft. of natural gas daily, approximately one-quarter of the present requirements of the Trans-Canada line. This amount, together with the Canadian Gulf contract quantities, amounts to approximately 60% of the pipeline company's present requirements.

Mr. Tanner said today that several other gas-purchase contracts currently were being negotiated and good progress was being made.

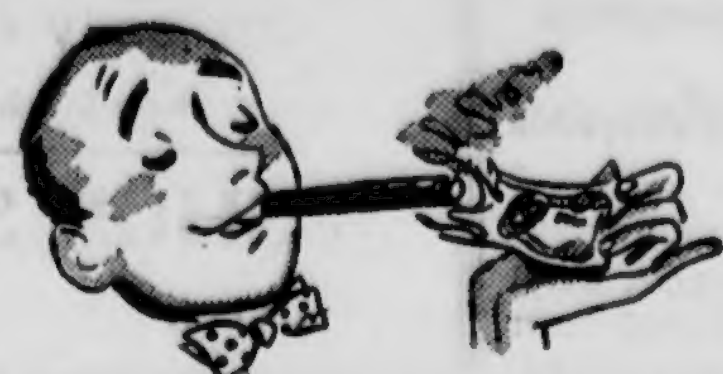

The signing of the contract with Canadian Gulf followed closely on other recent announcements outlining Trans-Canada progress in plans for construction of the 2,250 mi. pipe line to take Alberta natural gas to Eastern Canada.

Trans-Canada announced plans to start construction next spring on the Toronto-Montreal section of its line and the placing of an order for $9,000,000, worth of pipe for that section. Mr. Tanner said also that the company was progressing with plans to start construction on the main Trans-Canada project in the spring of 1956.

Meanwhile, Tennessee Gas Transmission Company has filed applications with the Federal Power Commission in Washington to import two hundred million cu. ft. of gas daily from Trans-Canada at Emerson, Man., and an additional two hundred million cu. ft. daily if and when it is available. Tennessee has also agreed to sell to Trans-Canada under a short-term contract up to ninety million cu. ft. daily at Niagara for the Toronto-Montreal line until Alberta gas arrives through the all-Canadian line, and to purchase from Trans-Canada at Niagara natural gas over and above the requirements of Eastern Canada once the Alberta gas is being carried through the all-Canadian line.

News From Your District Home Economist

Elizabeth M. Hartman, Lethbridge

Windows are the natural highlights in your home. You can emphasize or subdue these focal points by the way you treat them.

Aside from the color and pattern afforded by draperies or curtains, they may be used to make windows appear higher or lower, wider or narrower. By extending rods beyond the window frames and exposing most of the glass, your windows will appear to be wider than they really are; for windows that are too wide, hang the draperies inside the window frames to make the windows appear in better proportion. A high window will seem lower if you build a deep cornice box or valance or if you use drapery fabric with a distinctive horizontal weave or pattern. The reverse is also true, a low window will gain stature with a high-sitting cornice box or valance and/or vertical stripes in the fabric used as drapery.

Draperies may be depended upon to bring color into a room or to subdue an existing color scheme. Should your walls and floor be neutral use colorful draperies for interest. If the room is small blend walls and draperies in the same shade and create the illusion of greater space. A room badly cut up by windows should follow this same suggestion for unity.

Draperies are useful "tie-ups" in your color scheming. Your drapery should repeat the other colors in your room. Better still, if you are redecorating use the colors in your patterned drapes as your color chart, use those colors to build your entire room scheme.

Your purse, and the type of room and treatment will dictate the general type of material. Of the more unusual drapery fabrics, linen is distinctive, very durable and retains its colors beautifully and cleans easily. Wool is luxurious and higher priced, but economical in the long wearing and insulating qualities. Bamboo has its own natural finish, which takes wax beautifully, often giving distinctive effects.

Fullness is the one "must" for any window treatment. Draw draperies require about two and a half times window width, to look well when closed. Buy enough yardage even if you must use a lower priced fabric.

You are wise if you buy material that resists fading and will not shrink more than 1%. Washable materials, headings and linings will make their care easier for you.

PASSION PLAY

The group was unknown and, at times, there was very little money. Salaries were paid only when finances permitted and there was times when it seemed impossible that the money would be forthcoming to pay for the transportation to the next town. However, as America came out of the depression, The Passion Play began to be on the more firm financial basis. Josef Meier and his group began to look for a permanent home in this country.

In 1938 Mr. Meier decided to settle in the Black Hills of South Dakota. An amphitheatre was built as Spearfish, a tiny western town not far from Homestake Gold Mine at Lead, and the gold rush city of Deadwood, the famous Mount Rushmore Memorial. The Play was named the Black Hills Passion Play of America and played its first season in its new home in the summer of 1939. It has been presented there each summer since, with the exception of the war years when gas and tire rationing prevented tourist travel and the presentation of the Play was briefly discontinued.

Each year more and more people come to Spearfish to see the Play in its magnificent outdoor setting. Last summer 100,000 saw the Black Hills Passion Play during its eleven week season. They came from every state in the Union, all of the Provinces of Canada, Hawaii, Alaska and even from foreign countries.

It had been customary each winter for the troupe to tour Canada, presenting the Passion Play in theatres and auditoriums so that those who could not travel to Spearfish might have an opportunity to see the Passion Play. However, in 1951 the Black Hills Passion Play was invited to come to Florida to establish a winter home for production. The people of Lakes Wales and Polk County with the assistance of the State of Florida, raised $125,000.00 to build an amphitheatre for this purpose. It is located in the heart of the great citrus groves of central Florida just two miles south of Lake Wales.

Our High School Cheer Leaders deserve a lot of credit for the work they went to, to raise funds to purchase their costumes. On Friday night they sponsored three dances two junior and one senior. They sold homemade popcorn, candy and punch. Judy Strong thought the lovely cake in her mother's cupboard should help quite a bit so that went too and raised quite a sum cut into portions.

Their efforts were crowned with success and they reached their goal. There's nothing delinquent about those kids.

Laddie, Brent and Sharon accompanied their mom and dad, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Heggie to Grassy Lake, where they enjoyed Sunday dinner at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Adamson. They visited the lake which appeared to be a fisherman's paradise judging from the number of anglers present.

Mrs. Armand Peterson of Edmonton was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doris Stone on Monday evening.

Mesdames, Carrie Palmer, June West, Alice Powelson, Irene Allred, Lucy Stevens, Lenore Dainard and Annie Adams really enjoyed the surprised birthday party they planned for Vera Dawley at her home while she was at M.I.A. on Thursday night. What a surprise it was too, judging from Vera's face when the lights went on. Two tables of Rook were enjoyed on a light lunch served. They presented Vera with a gift.
